The aged care sector has experienced over a decade of disruption in funding, clinical requirements and legislative changes amidst a background of changing consumer needs and expectations.

The learnings from the financial services royal commission, as well as the recently established royal commission into Australia's aged care sector highlight the importance of putting the consumer first and finding the right balance between societal purpose and sustainability.

Australian community supports increased aged care funding

Landmark new research by Flinders University shows Australians strongly support increased funding to ensure universal access to high-quality aged care services in the future. The research was conducted for the Royal Commission into Aged Care Quality and Safety and is based on a survey of 10,000 adults not currently using aged care services.

Use of face masks in the community to protect against COVID-19

Wearing a face mask is now recommended by Australian health experts in areas where community transmission of COVID-19 is high if physical distancing is not possible. In response, the Australian Commission on Safety and Quality in Health Care has developed new resources to provide guidance to consumers on the use of face masks to protect against COVID-19.

Senior Australian Stakeholder Kit - COVID-19 Supports

Older people are at greater risk of more serious illness if they get coronavirus. As we move towards a COVIDSafe Australia, it is important for people at greater risk to take extra steps to protect themselves. There are a range of government-funded services they can access to help with this. You may already be aware of some or all of these services, but many older people are not. Please help in promoting these services to older Australians so they reach those who need them.

Connecting Up: Do you Have the Right Hardware for Collaboration?

4 August 2020, 11.00am-12.00pm

Online Cost: Free.

Most of us have spent the last 3 months trying to work our way around Zoom, Slack and Microsoft Teams from home, but what happens when some staff begin to return to the office? How do you ensure those still working from home don't get left behind?

This session will explore the critical hardware and software (and budget) required to prepare your office environment for best practice video conferencing, document sharing and meetings. Code Blue will share agnostic hardware and software recommendations, comparisons, and case studies of products available to enable organisations to adapt their office environment to cater for employees who work from home and in the office together.

Examples for small to large office settings, one to one meetings, and some unique digital solutions available for managing reception and staff movements will be shared.

Transitioning Volunteers back into the Workforce

As government restrictions ease, and organisations make plans to transition workers back to the workplace, many organisations are asking whether they can or should ask volunteers to return to the workplace. It has been tricky for organisations to understand what to do if they have volunteers that fall into the categories that government has declared to be at increased risk of a serious COVID-19 infection. Justice Connect Not-for-profit Law have answered some of the questions being asked by volunteer-involving organisations about managing the return of volunteers to the workplace in a fact sheet.
