Grant opportunity – CHSP Growth Funding 2020-21 and 2021-22

Closes Friday 5 February 2021 at 2.00pm (AEDT).

There are provisions under the Commonwealth Home Support Programme (CHSP) for the allocation of additional growth funding to help meet increased numbers of older Australians needing access to CHSP services. Growth funding is allocated on the basis of identified funding priorities and gaps in service delivery. Broad consultation with the sector informed the priorities that are identified and targeted in this grant opportunity.

This grant opportunity seeks to meet the entry-level aged care needs of older Australians by increasing funding to meet targeted geographic and service needs of clients eligible for CHSP.

This grant opportunity targets two CHSP Sub-Programs and 15 CHSP service types, as outlined in the table at Appendix A – Priority Table. The profile of the targeted growth priorities varies across Aged Care Planning Regions (ACPR) to address the local need and availability of services.

Dementia training, education and support to get a $44 million boost

Aged care services minister Richard Colbeck says the funding will extend national programs provided by Dementia Training Australia and Dementia Support Australia for another year. The programs deliver clinical support, assessments, recommendations for care interventions, mentoring and capacity building for family and informal carers, primary and acute care staff and aged care service providers.

“They also provide accredited education, upskilling and professional development in dementia care for health and care workers, GPs, nurses and allied health professionals,” Senator Colbeck said in a statement on Tuesday.

The programs include:

- Dementia Training Program (DTP)
- Dementia Behaviour Management Advisory Service (DMAS)
- Severe Behaviour Response Teams (SBRT)
- Needs Based Assessment (NBA)

The minister says the final report of the aged care royal commission, set to be handed down next month, will determine how the programs are delivered beyond June 2022.

10,000 more home care packages on the way

The federal government has announced 10,000 extra home care packages worth more than $850 million in its midyear economic outlook released late last year. The allocation will increase the number of Australians receiving in-home care to approximately 195,600 by the end of June, says health minister Greg Hunt, who has since been handed responsibility for the government's response to the aged care royal commission.

In ministerial changes also unveiled by Mr Morrison late last year, the aged care and senior Australians portfolio will be brought into Cabinet, with Richard Colbeck retaining responsibility for aged care services.

Smart home technology for older Australians.

The NSW office of eSafety is offering the course on smart homes and cloud technology as part of its Be Connected program.

eSafety Commissioner Julie Inman Grant says there is huge potential for smart home technology to help seniors around the home.

Some 1.5 million Australians aged over 55 own a smart speaker, eSafety says.

"Smart speakers offer a lot of convenience for older Australians but also importantly, they can help seniors who may be mobility or vision impaired," Ms Grant says.

"Just by using their voice, they can make appointments, get the latest news and weather updates and more."

She says its estimated that by 2025 more than four million Australians will be using smart speakers.

"So this is technology that is becoming increasingly common and beneficial to many older Australians," she says.

The course explains smart technology, and how to set up a smart speaker and use voice control to perform tasks like setting reminders or searching for recipes.

It also explains what cloud technology is and how to use it safely.
